

I Applied, Now What?

Now that you have finished answering and completing the application, there will be a few other steps that you will need to take. Read the instructions below about paying for your application fees, keeping track of your confirmation page, when to expect schools to contact you and information on transcripts, test scores, financial aid and more.

Transcripts, Test Scores and Essays

Many admissions offices require students to send additional information or materials in order to complete the application. Make sure you find out what other information is needed (that was not included in your application) and send it to the campus as soon as possible. Review the Application/Materials Checklist or the individual Website for the college(s) you applied to for more information.

Confirmation Page

Do not leave the computer lab without a hardcopy printout of your Application Confirmation Page. Make sure to put the page in a safe place.

Schools should contact you

Once you have submitted your online application, a campus representative should be in contact via e-mail or letter to inform you of your application status. Most colleges also have a link on their site where you can check your application status. If you have not been contacted within 1-2 weeks, you may want to get in touch with the admissions office.

Now what?

Take advantage of the other resources that are available on CollegInColorado.org.

- Don't forget to document the colleges and/or universities to which you applied in your CollegInColorado.org portfolio. College Planning>Postsecondary Plans>College Applications>Add Self-Reported Application.
- Check out college planning and financial aid timelines.
- Check out the resume and cover letter templates.

- Research all your financial aid options.
- Apply for the FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) beginning October 1.
- Search and apply for scholarships.
- Apply for the College Opportunity Fund (COF).

Congratulations, you have now completed College Application Month!
